Second Chance Covenant Ministry Will Continue to Provide As Michigan Faces Another Lockdown

Coronavirus cases are rapidly growing as The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services initially issued a three-week order that restricts social gatherings and group activities. The order is now extended until December 20, and it included the closure of businesses, high schools, colleges and universities, as well as restaurant dine ins. This would result in workers being laid off and having to find alternatives to get by. Second Chance Covenant Ministry (SCCVM) continues to assist communities by having weekly food deliveries to households. Elnora Ramsey, 82, used SCCVM as a resource to obtain fresh fruits and vegetables. She referred people to the ministry after having a positive experience with their services. "I thought they would be in need for it," Ramsey said. "It was convenient that they [SCCVM] delivered when others did not have transportation and were disabled." Ramsey became familiar with the ministry after her friend, Sandra Smith, referred her to their programs. Ramsey recently attended the Pull Up & Park October Festival, which she recalled "very remarkable."

SCCVM inspires others to get involved in events. Jennie Wells, 70, shared her first encounter with Pastor Cee when they attended the same church.

"I was acquainted with Pastor Casandra a few years ago from our church mother," Wells said. "We have developed a friendship at that point." Wells recalled her involvement in one of Pastor Cee's events. She originally helped her in her senior activity programs, where they handed out gifts to seniors. Wells acknowledged Pastor Cee's outreach to first responders and people who served the community. Wells also said Pastor Cee is sure to bring words of encouragement in each occurrence. "

She has just been a real asset to the community," Wells said. "She had a heart for the people and she is such a blessing."

Wells continues to assist SCCVM by distributing food and goods. She said she gives her support whenever she is needed and gives prayers to the participants.

SECOND CHANCE SPREADS HOLIDAY CHEER TO ESSENTIAL WORKERS

On November 20, Second Chance Covenant Ministry (SCCVM) partnered with St. Anne's Mead to deliver food goods to families. As an assisted living community that is located in Southfield, St. Anne's Mead provides health care and assistance for seniors in a vibrant, interfaith environment. St. Anne's Mead and SCCVM share a similar value as both are 501(c)(3) nonprofit organizations that provide spiritual, cultural, and recreational activities to enrich lives. SCCVM staff gave 120 bags of fruits and vegetables, and 100 bags of produce to St. Anne's Mead and Greenfield Rehab and Nursing Center essential employees.

"Thank you, Second Chance Covenant Ministry, for thinking of us here at St. Anne's and including us in your ministry." Life Enrichment Coordinator Jennifer Stone said. "Our jobs are oftentimes difficult, both emotionally and physically, and it means so much to us to be recognized by the community. I know our staff will be extremely grateful for your thoughtfulness and generosity." The ministry engages in weekly food deliveries throughout Oakland County, supplying food boxes to residents. The program is funded by United Way for Southeastern Michigan. For more about SCCVM, please go to sccvm.org.
